Ralph's first job was working on Canada Steamship Lines (CSL) Penetang (named after Pentanguishine) as a deck hand. Ironically, the Noronic burned to the gunnels that same summer, taking 118 lives with her.

While serving on the Penetang, the ship struck another boat in the darkness of nighttime, and the crew was ordered to prepare to abandon ship. Ralph slept through the event, and no one woke him up.
